Samvat is a term used to refer to the era described through the Indian calendar. Thus, samvat can be used as a term to refer to any of the different Hindu calendars. Chaka Samvat and Vikram Samvat depend on lunar months and solar years. However, the traditional Chaka samvat follows the solar side years, and the modern samps fork track solar orbital years. Chaka Samvat is based on chaitra calendar years that were named after the solar months named: – 1. Chaitra 2. Vesakha 3. Jeshtha 4. Shehada 5. Saravana 6. Bhadra 7. Savina 8. Kartika 9. Ajiana or Margashersha 10. Baushta 11. Maga 12. Phalguna Saka Samvat is believed to be based on the celebration that took place at the time of the coronation of King Shalifahan in 78 M. Judy Badau (March-April) refers to the beginning of this particular year. The redrafted Saca calendar is officially used in India as a civil calendar. Calendar.
